SAF files opposition brief for summary judgement from sports page 1

moving for a summary judgment, the state is trying to 'spare the OGM law the full brunt of proper scrutiny, steer the analysis right back into the prohibited field of "means-end" scrutiny, and hopefully avoid its otherwise inevitable constitutional demise.' Clearly, California is trying to defend the indefensible while protecting an unconstitutional law and the state will be dragged kicking and screaming to the 21st Century reality that the law is wrong."

"The material facts, alone, make it clear the OGM law can't survive constitutional scrutiny," added SAF Executive Director Adam Kraut. "Especially since Bruen, the state cannot provide any historical analogous evidence such limits existed at the time the Second Amendment was written. Therefore, the law must be found unconstitutional."
