Atlanta, Baltimore, Miami, and D.C. vie for OBL Hoops Crown on July 1 ... from sports page 1

1v1 basketball competition drawing players from cities nationwide. During the Summer 2026 multi-week season, eight initial cities will field teams featuring hoopers who embody the heart and essence of their respective towns, bringing a unique and dynamic aspect to their representation. Cities battle for pride and prize, each sending out one player at a time in one-on-one matchups for thrilling, quick games that keep audiences on the edge of their seats. The production will feature intense gameplay, as well as a deeper look into player backgrounds and real individual stories highlighting their talent and authenticity. “OBL: Battle of The Cities” takes an expanded version of the original OBL, with elite athletes bringing their own vision, culture and prestige from the cities where they grew up, played, or call home. Each city-based team has a four-man roster, comprised of players who best reflect the tradition, values and basketball culture of that city, hand-selected by the teams’ celebrity Owners and GMs.

The “Battle of The Cities” team Owners and GMs include:

- Team Atlanta: Quenton Brown, brother of Jaylen, star of

- the Boston Celtics
 - Team Baltimore: Muggsy Bogues, 14-year NBA veteran
 - Team Chicago: Larenz Tate, actor, film producer, basketball aficionado
 - Team Miami: Tim Hardaway Sr., five-time NBA All-Star
 - Team New York: Jadakiss, recording star and basketball insider
 - Team Washington, D.C.: Quinn Cook, two-time NBA champion

About Ones Basketball League OBL is the premier one-on-one basketball league in the world, celebrating the most skilled one-on-one players on the planet.

Founded by Basketball Hall of Famer Tracy McGrady, the OBL was created to unite communities through the universal language and love of basketball. Our mission is to showcase elite 1v1 talent while celebrating the swagger, pride, and identity of every city represented. By giving players and fans a platform to compete, connect and celebrate where they’re from, OBL transforms local passion into a global stage. Every matchup tells a story – proving that every city has a legacy worth fighting for. For more details visit www.oblhoops.com.

expose them and their families to unnecessary danger.” “It is extremely concerning that the D.C. Council has chosen to overtly undermine federal law by doxing officers for doing their job to uphold law and order. This interference by local government seriously undermines the safety and security of our federal officers. I am proud to join Senator Hagerty in disapproving of these misguided policies,” said Budd. “For years, the D.C. Council allowed crime and decay to plague our nation’s capital. Now that President Trump has saved lives and cleaned up Washington by deploying federal law enforcement, the far-left Council seeks to doxx and hinder the courageous men and women doing the job D.C. refuses to do. We should not tolerate it,” said Lee. “Instead of helping our law enforcement officers make our nation’s capital safer, D.C. officials are targeting our brave women and men in blue. This is unacceptable,” said Ricketts. “I’m glad to join this effort to reject D.C.’s anti-police agenda. Law enforcement deserves our support as they work to ensure law and order in Washington.”
