Edwards drew on her own experiences with grief and healing while writing "Wrestle with God," finding a natural connection to the story at the center of the film.

"I don't think anything has ever felt more aligned than getting a call from one of my favorite producers in the world to write a song for one of the most defining stories of our generation," Edwards recalls. "I remember Dave telling me the story was rooted in survival through grief, and that he couldn't think of a better artist to tell it. In that moment, I couldn't have felt more seen."

low hanging fruit comes as the closing chapter of her sophomore breakout album FRUIT. After losing her brother to suicide following a battle with schizophrenia, she was dropped by her label, management, and most of her team. Instead of surrendering, she ventured forth independently and used her experiences to create an album that reflected her grief but was rooted in hope, released entirely on her own terms. In doing so, she ignited a quiet movement of people healing through story, spirituality, and song. FRUIT was met with critical acclaim, with Rolling Stone calling it "a stunning document of healing in progress, a result of living through grief and figuring out a way forward with it, not despite it."

In the process of sharing her story, Edwards found that the music was helping her heal, too. That realization became the starting point for low hanging fruit, her most personal and unguarded collection to date.

"low hanging fruit is a gentle hand to hold on a rainy day," continued Edwards. "It's a moment alone in the car when you're feeling sad. It's a little bit of hope inside your soul, even when you're certain it's been snuffed out. This album was a friend to me during the darkest season of my life, and now I get to give that friend to the world. And to my beloved brother, Jonah: You will always be in every note I sing and every color I paint with. Thank you for teaching me how to live and how to love. Until we meet again."

Raised in Houston after moving from California as a child, Edwards grew up navigating a difficult home life while putting herself through the University of Houston, where she studied advertising and law. She supported herself and her family through various jobs while continuing to write, produce, and perform music. After more than a decade of building her career independently, a Tiny Desk performance with Tobe Nwigwe helped introduce her to a much wider audience.

Since then, Edwards has performed alongside The Highwomen on a Lady Gaga track, opened for Chris Stapleton and Willie Nelson, made her Grand Ole Opry debut, and appeared at the CMA and CMT Awards. This past summer, she opened for Ella Langley and has since embarked on a nationwide tour supporting Joy Oladokun on her The Heavy Things tour.

November 2, 2026 - The Second Amendment Foundation is pleased to announce that SIG SAUER has renewed their corporate partner commitment at the Gold level.

"Protecting the fundamental rights of individuals to keep and bear arms is a full-time job, and the Second Amendment Foundation has been instrumental in leading that effort," said Phil Strader, Vice President, Consumer Affairs at SIG SAUER. "The SAF actively and aggressively defends the Second Amendment with legal action but also educates the public about the importance of responsible gun ownership. SIG SAUER couldn't be prouder to support their mission and is honored to be a part of such an important organization."

"Protecting the fundamental rights of individuals to keep and bear arms is a full-time job, and the Second Amendment Foundation has been instrumental in leading that effort," said Phil Strader, Vice President, Consumer Affairs at SIG SAUER.

SIG SAUER Inc. is a leading manufacturer of premium firearms, electro-optics, ammunition, remote-controlled weapon stations, and drones. Building off its 250-year track record, the company's products are synonymous with industry-leading engineering, quality, and innovation which has made it the brand of choice across the defense industry, law enforcement, and shooting community. SIG SAUER serves all branches of the U.S. Armed Forces and with a presence in more than 90 countries is the preferred partner to top militaries around the world. In addition to their renewed corporate partner commitment, SIG SAUER also routinely donates products for SAF's monthly sweepstakes program to help fund the organization's critical work.

"SIG SAUER's corporate partner renewal is a testament to their dedication and steadfast commitment to ensuring our Second Amendment freedoms remain for generations," said SAF Executive Director Adam Kraut. "With more than 55 active lawsuits across the country – including two 'assault weapons' ban cases awaiting oral argument before the Supreme Court – SIG's renewal will help us remain at the forefront in the fight to keep and bear arms. The support of our members, donors and corporate partners provide the cornerstone on which SAF can continue building on our record of fighting unjust and unconstitutional gun control laws across the U.S., and we're grateful for their continued support."
